QUESTIONS WHICH WERE DISCUSSED WITH THEIR BRIEF ANSWERS:

Q 1: How can skill development program create employment opportunities in rural areas?

Rural India is the real face of our country as it represents 68.9 percent of our population. It is important to engage the rural youth in a productive way in tandem with their aspirations by providing them credible opportunities for growth and wellbeing. But in the globalized area, firms and industries demand for more skill workers. In addition to this technological change, particularly the development of Information and Communication Technology (ICT) is occurring at unprecedented speed, requiring workers to have more and more complex cognitive skills than ever. Therefore it is important to meet the challenges and prepare rural youth with the proper education and skills they need. Although there are many programmes for their development but it is important to note that all of these programme will be successful only if they are implemented properly.

In India basic education should go hand in hand with technical vocational training in rural India also. Job oriented courses should be incorporated into the curriculum. Government should keep a strict watch on the education system and try to implement new ways to generate skilled labour force in rural India also. The education should be as per the current requirements of the industries.

Q 2: How skilling of rural women can be done? How to help them shift from manual labor to desk jobs?

Women are better able to handle managerial positions than men because they are temperamentally calmer, able to multi-task, prioritise and possess better articulation and wider vision.

If they are supported, encouraged and most importantly trained, they can become better managers.

The education system has been unable to provide suitable and locally relevant programmes to women from economically weaker backgrounds due to lack of vision on the part of policy makers.

Q 3: Impact of skill development programmes on rural youth?

Depending upon the natural resource available in a particular area/region, skill development initiatives and courses relevant to that resource utilization can be linked / framed so as to have perfect demand supply. There must be continuous communication between enterprises.

Government should encourage and develop agriculture based industries in rural areas so that the rural candidates don't migrate to the urban areas. More employment should be generated in rural areas for the seasonal unemployed people. In rural India, young people should provide with access to land and finance to appreciate new startups.

KEY TAKEAWAYS

1. Artificial Intelligence, Cyber Security and Emerging technologies should be at the forefront of skilling in the future, therefore, it is right time to hone on these skills and train the youth to meet the future requirements.
2. Entrepreneurial programs provide an excellent opportunity to connect education systems with the local economy because they are based on specific activities and projects and on the voluntary participation of real entrepreneurs. For students which develop contacts in the local business community, the probability of remaining in their region or native land after completion of studies, either as employees of a local company or founding their own business is higher.
